

Signage and Other Communications

Shown above is a representative collection of King County Metro Transit signage displaying many different materials, designs and structural systems used to convey public information in an authoritative, efficient, and easy-to-understand manner. Signage applications include identification signs, directional signs, bus stop signs, regulatory signs, temporary signs and coach signs.

Information pertaining to the construction and design of this standard signage is already well documented in The Metro Signing Standards Manual on the Metro Information Production intranet at <http://dot.metrokc.gov/sales/signage/homepage.html>.